

Intern in Sales and Logistics

BIGH is a young company that aims to develop, build and operate integrated aquaponic farms in urban sites. Our main objective is to produce sustainable food integrated in a short circuit to promote a circular economy. The first farm, Brussels Aquaponic Farm, was inaugurated in April 2018 and produces rainbow trout, tomatoes, aubergines and aromatic herbs in a coupled system. BIGH operates this site while considering the development of other farms in Brussels, as well as in other major European cities.

Team and approach

We are a young and dynamic team passionate about sustainable development. Our employees are eager to share their ideas and thoughts whilst bringing continuous improvements (technical, economic, environmental optimizations). We offer a work environment specific to a start-up, with lots of energy and driven by a unique vision to bring local, healthy and sustainable products.

Operating site

The Brussels Aquaponic Farm (4000 m²) is located in the Abattoirs of Anderlecht, an emblematic site in the center of the Belgian capital. It is made up of different innovative agricultural systems, allowing the demonstration of the potential solutions that urban agriculture can offer. The roof includes a high-tech greenhouse producing aromatic herbs and vegetables, an outdoor garden and finally a recirculated aquaculture system. All the systems are linked, whereby the nutrient rich wastewater from the aquaculture system is used to irrigate the different crops.
